February 2016

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

I will destroy the wisdom of the wise; the intelligence of the intelligent I will frustrate (1 Cor. 1:19)

Don't waste another minute.

Right now, on the porch steps of a new year, before you get too far in, go ahead and resign as manager of the universe. Offer your resignation freely before life teaches you the hard way that you're really not well suited for the job.

Who's In Charge Here?

I received such a schooling years ago when my son was quite young and still playing football. A Saturday game had been scheduled for 2:00 p.m. Around 1:30 it started raining – a nice steady ground-soaking downpour. I noted this fact to my son with calm objectivity, but inside I was elated. It looked like I'd be getting back some of my Saturday afternoon. Surely they'd be canceling his game.

But the automated message that updates field conditions and cancellations said otherwise. "Get dressed. Until we know your game is canceled we're going to assume it's not."

I was trying to teach a life-lesson, a basic principle of sportsmanship: if you belong to a team you do what the team is asked to do. If the team is on the field, then you'll be on the field. To say that my son "resisted" my teaching on this point is stating the matter mildly.

To my amazement, when we arrived at the field, games were indeed being played. The sight of this evoked further protest from my young athlete. I tried to keep teaching the team-player life principle wondering all the while why these games hadn't been called off.

Already late, we walked to the field. My son was put in as a lineman and the rain kept falling. The game continued for about five minutes – and then someone walked out and told the refs to stop. Game over. By now every young man was drenched and muddy, including mine.

Frustrated, I drove home trying to be outwardly stoic with my son, wondering inwardly about the intelligence and wisdom of whomever it was that hadn't made that decision thirty minutes sooner.

It's a character flaw, I know. But I want the world to be operated according to my own sense of judgment about what makes good sense. I want the kid at the drive-thru window to do his job like I think it ought to be done. I want the people at Time-Warner to deal with my TV problem the way I think they ought to deal with it. I want someone at the athletic fields to call the game when it starts raining, not when everyone is wet, muddy, and irritated.

Because that rarely happens, I am well acquainted with frustration: frustration at the drive-thru window, frustration with the cable company, frustration with the folks who run the football program. And sadly, I am sometimes frustrated with God.

I've got some ideas as to how the universe should operate and how my life ought to unfold. I don't have all the answers, and I'm careful not to be too demanding with the answers I think I have. But I'm a fairly intelligent person. I have a functional moral compass. I have a clear sense of what seems good and right. And when things don't work according to my understanding of good and right and reasonable, I complain.

Baffled . . . but blessed.

Paul has an important word for all of us who think we know something about how life should be and how things should work in this world. God takes delight in frustrating us; God is almost playful in talking our wisdom and showing it to be folly. God is equally reckless in doing what we think is foolish and proving it wise in ways we would have never dreamed.

You may be totally baffled as to what God is doing in your life today. There's encouragement in this: God's wisdom rarely strikes us as wise. God frustrates our intelligence, makes light of our rational good sense. That can be either frustrating or freeing. The question is whether we will we trust God and God's wisdom.

FEBRUARY STARTS OUR LENTEN JOURNEY

On February 7 we remember the Transfiguration of the Lord in which Jesus goes to the mountaintop along with three of his apostles and begins to shine with bright rays of light. Then, the prophets Moses and Elijah appear next to him, and he speaks with them showing his disciples a glimpse of his heavenly glory. The choir will be singing, “With Wings as Eagles” centering us on the theme of being raised up.

Next, we come to Ash Wednesday on the 10th. It is a time to reflect upon our mortal condition and to hear those familiar words, “Remember, from dust you are and to dust you shall return.” We come with penitent hearts to receive the ashes in the shape of a cross on our foreheads reminding us of the good news of the gospel – forgiveness for all and life in Christ.

Our Lenten journey now begins. This Lent I am feeling the need to reach outward to our fellow man as we live out the teachings of Jesus the Christ in our daily lives. Our lives change as we give of ourselves in feeding the hungry, comforting the sick, and working to relieve suffering and injustice among the oppressed. In the words of St. Francis, “for it is in giving, we receive.” Our world is in dire need of peace and reconciliation. Here I offer my Lenten journey theme.

Prayer of St. Francis

Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace;
where there is hatred, let me sow love;
where there is injury, pardon;
where there is doubt, faith;
where there is despair, hope;
where there is darkness, light;
and where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console;
to be understood, as to understand;
to be loved, as to love;
for it is in giving that we receive,
it is in pardoning that we are pardoned,
and it is in dying that we are born to Eternal Life. Amen.

Director of Ministry of Music

If you spend $100, the mission fund will grow by $5. We all buy groceries so why not help fund our mission trip in the process? Editor's Note: "It's More Than Houses" is another in a series of columns that appear regularly in "The Tower Tie" highlighting the mission work that takes place in our church. "Seeking to put God's love into action, Habitat Newburgh brings people together to build homes, communities and hope" is the mission statement of Habitat for Humanity of Newburgh. It will be our 2016 mission trip destination June 27 -July 1. We hope you will join us.

IT'S MORE THAN HOUSES

By Sue Varden

Jeanine Jennings and her son, Jahmere, lived in a mold-infested apartment in Newburgh where the pumping leaked constantly. The single mom worried about the impact on their health, but when she petitioned the landlord to make improvements in the apartment, she was served with eviction papers. Then homeless, they lived in a motel, trying to get by.

"In our darkest moment, when we were homeless and Jahmere was facing being held back in school, Habitat gave us hope," Jeanine said. "I don't know where Jahmere would be today if we hadn't found Habitat Newburgh."

In 2012 Jeanine applied to be a Habitat partner family. She worked hard but had a low-paying job which made her eligible for the Habitat program. She attended Habitat homeownership classes and completed her 250 sweat equity hours working on a Habitat construction site alongside volunteers and other partner family members. At the conclusion, she was able to purchase a home for herself and her son.

"I'll never forget how I felt on the day we moved in. For the first time ever, I saw a sense of relief in Jahmere, knowing that this devastating period in our lives was finally over. Knowing that we would have a table to sit around for dinner, a place to do homework and talk about Jahmere's future, and a place to build a life and make memories. A place where we were safe."

There are many stories like that of the Jennings. The City of Newburgh is designated as the most distressed urban area in New York State, and its shortage of livable housing has created worst-case scenarios for thousands of hard-working families.

To date, Habitat Newburgh has built 78 houses and accepted over 90 families into its homeownership program. All combined, the new home owners contribute over $375,000 annually to the city and school tax rolls. Habitat homes have restored more than $7 million to the City's assessed property values and are a driving force in the revitalization of Newburgh.

Habitat for Humanity is one of the most recognizable and well-respected nonprofit organizations in the world. It has witnessed first-hand the results of having a place where children can thrive, self-esteem grows, and families can bond. Its work helps stabilize and revitalize neighborhoods, which often see a reduction in crime and an increase in the quality of life of the community.

TEEN VOICES

Meets the 1st and 3rd Sundays of each month at 9:30 am in
Teen/High School Meeting Room
(Just follow the signs)

We have begun exploring how prayer can help us grow and ground us in our faith and in our daily lives. We are looking at different ways to pray that reach our individual personalities, whether through traditional prayer, music, art, meditation, etc.

Midnight Run

Teens ages 14 and older are able to join us on the Midnight Run FPG has scheduled for February 20th. This can be an impactful experience for a teen as he or she serves the homeless and needy of Manhattan. This is a late night Midnight Run and we expect to be out from about 7pm until 2am. Any teen in this age group that is interested in joining us should let us know as soon as possible so that we can make sure we have enough chaperones. Since we will be out so late, we will not be doing a Teen Voices class the following day.

Teen Retreat to Tuscarora

Teen Voices (grades 7 to 12) will be going on a weekend Christian Youth Retreat to Tuscarora Conference Center in Bethel, Pennsylvania, Friday, March 4th to Sunday March 6th. We attended this retreat last year and the teens enjoyed the fun and spirit-filled experience. We will meet up with the teens from Paty and Mark's old church, Olivet Presbyterian Church in Staten Island. They have been making this annual retreat for decades. There is a charge for attending the retreat which covers the cost of the rooms and food (approximately $130 per person). If any teen wants to attend but needs some financial assistance, please let Paty, Mark or Pastor Kingsley know. Let us know as soon as possible if you plan to join us.
