Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

This appeared in the New York Times the other day, and I enjoyed it so much that I decided that I would share it with you in place of my usual column. Enjoy!

Congregations Gone Wild
By G. JEFFREY MacDONALD
Swampscott, Mass.

The American clergy is suffering from burnout, several new studies show. And part of the problem, as researchers have observed, is that pastors work too much. Many of them need vacations, it's true. But there's a more fundamental problem that no amount of rest and relaxation can help solve: congregational pressure to forsake one's highest calling.

The pastoral vocation is to help people grow spiritually, resist their lowest impulses and adopt higher, more compassionate ways. But churchgoers increasingly want pastors to soothe and entertain them. It's apparent in the theater-style seating and giant projection screens in churches and in mission trips that involve more sightseeing than listening to the local people.

As a result, pastors are constantly forced to choose, as they work through congregants' daily wish lists in their e-mail and voicemail, between paths of personal integrity and those that portend greater job security. As religion becomes a consumer experience, the clergy become more unhappy and unhealthy.

The trend toward consumer-driven religion has been gaining momentum for half a century. Consider that in 1955 only 15 percent of Americans said they no longer adhered to the faith of their childhood, according to a Gallup poll. By 2008, 44 percent had switched their religious affiliation at least once, or dropped it altogether, the Pew Forum on Religion & Public Life found. Americans now sample, dabble, and move on when a religious leader fails to satisfy for any reason.

In this transformation, clergy have seen their job descriptions rewritten. They're no longer expected to offer moral counsel in pastoral care sessions or to deliver sermons that make the comfortable uneasy. Church leaders who continue such ministerial traditions pay dearly. A few years ago, thousands of parishioners quit Woodland Hills Church in St. Paul, Minn., and Community Church of Joy in Glendale, Ariz., when their respective preachers refused to bless the congregations' preferred political agendas and consumerist lifestyles.

I have faced similar pressures myself. In the early 2000s, the advisory committee of my small congregation in Massachusetts told me to keep my sermons to 10 minutes, tell funny stories, and leave people feeling great about themselves. The unspoken message in such instructions is clear: give us the comforting, amusing fare we want or we'll get our spiritual leadership from someone else.

Congregations that make such demands seem not to realize that most clergy don't sign up to be soothsayers or entertainers. Pastors believe they're called to shape lives for the better, and that involves helping people learn to do what's right in life, even when what's right is also difficult. When they're being true to their calling, pastors urge Christians to do the hard work of reconciliation with one another before receiving communion. They lead people to share in the suffering of others, including people they would rather ignore, by experiencing tough circumstances—say, in a shelter, a prison, or a nursing home—and seeking relief together with those in need. At their courageous best, clergy lead where people aren't asking to go, because that's how the range of issues that concern them expands, and how a holy community gets formed.

Ministry is a profession in which the greatest rewards include meaningfulness and integrity. When those fade under pressure from churchgoers who don't want to be challenged or edified, pastors become candidates for stress and depression.

Clergy need parishioners who understand that the church exists, as it always has, to save souls by elevating people's values and desires. They need churchgoers to ask for personal challenges, in areas like daily devotions and outreach ministries.

When such an ethic takes root, as it has in generations past, then pastors will cease to feel like the spiritual equivalents of concierges. They'll again know joy in ministering among people who share their sense of purpose. They might even be on fire again for their calling, rather than on a path to premature burnout.

SEPTEMBER HARKENS TO RENEWAL

We now turn the page of the summer chapter in our lives and enter into early fall. Before we begin, though, let us take a moment as a worshipping community to reflect on the summer past. Some have gone through terrible trials with health problems and emotionally upsetting events; others have taken the time for rest and rejuvenation with family and friends; and others have just let the season glide by without anything really occurring, which can be relaxing as well. During summer services, the choir has been gathering and singing the anthems around the piano for a more intimate and informal feel.

We appreciate everyone who came out during the summer months to worship and be part of our church community—praying for, supporting, and loving one another. Our coffee hours continued and the fellowship, while smaller in the number of people, was still vital, alive, and meaningful to those who came out to church.

During the summer months, I spent time thinking about where we have been with our music ministry, how we might renew and expand our vision, and then made new plans for the fall music season. September is the time when we start afresh with renewed vigor, inspiration, and a desire to learn and grow in new ways.

Our Homecoming Sunday this year will be on September 12. We look forward to the start of a new Christian education year and will be welcoming back our Christian community as a whole. It is always an exciting Sunday when everyone returns, the pews are filled, and the chancel choir members are all in place. We like to see you back where you belong.

Our church is a community of believers who come together to worship, pray, learn, and sing praises. We love and support one another through the trials of life. Our choir and the music we make while singing hymns together is part of that ministry and binds us together. The presence and participation of every single member of this congregation is vital to supporting our mission and ministry.

We look forward to seeing you back in word and song.

Robert Clooney
Director of Ministry of Music

ADULT BIBLE STUDY

Tuesday morning Bible study is getting ready to start up again. Why not give some thought to joining us? Bible study meets the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at 10:00 a.m. in the parlor. Our first meeting this fall will be on Tuesday, September 14.

It's a great time to join up because after we finish studying the Minor Prophets, which will take about five sessions, we'll get into the New Testament. This will most likely happen in early November.

We have some lively discussions about what is written in the Bible, and we also give thought to how it affects our lives today. It's a wonderful—and enlightening—way to spend an hour, just twice a month.

For more information, please call Geri Corey (294-8414) or Pat (294-7991). If you need a study guide, Pat either has one in the office or can order it for you. Just ask.

Please join us. I know you'll find it rewarding. There's no commitment and no sign-up necessary. Just show up!

NEWS FROM DAN CONLEY

Yesterday and today, we had our pre-school-year meeting with all the Methodist schools in Samoa. There are three. For my birthday, we are going to catch the 12:00 p.m. boat to Apia. Then most of the people from my group, at least, are going to go out tonight for my birthday celebration.

The first day of meetings started at 7:00 a.m. We had two hours of prayer, then the chiefs of the village came and had a two-hour meeting where they gave us permission to hold school this year. Then the village gave the school money; then the school gave the village money; then they gave each other fish and pigs—the whole Samoan runaround where the people from the school and the village save money to give to each other money, but in the end, it only goes to the heads of both the village and the school. It is almost funny how ridiculous it is.

Then the principal and the chief had lunch. Then we had lunch, and then we had "rest time." At 2:00 p.m., we actually started to get work done. It ended at 6:00 p.m., followed by another church service and dinner at 7:00 p.m.. We skipped that, but a young married couple, Kal and Sarah, work at one of the other Methodist schools. They came and the principal asked if they could stay at my house. I said that was fine, so they did. Then we had to start at 6:30 a.m. this morning, and then we left. Now I'm waiting for the boat.

Bye,
Dan

We are looking for volunteers to help us with our Sunday school for the 2010–2011 school year. Educating the children is the backbone of our church’s responsibilities and the future of our church. We are in DESPERATE need of teachers for our grade level (2–3). The teacher who originally committed to teach September through December is unable to do so. Without a teacher for that grade level, it will be difficult to open Sunday school. The students at this grade level are always enthusiastic, wonderful learners.

In addition, I would like to add a backup teacher to each of our grade levels (Pre-K, K, 1), (2–3), (4, 5, 6). This would mean a commitment to teach every three to four weeks. We will provide everything you need—namely, the curriculum, the lesson plans, and any materials that you need. NO EXPERIENCE IS NEEDED! I promise that you will find the experience joyful and satisfying. Spending time with our Sunday school students is inspirational.

HUG HAPPENINGS

News of the Prayer Shawl Ministry

As we all seem to notice, the summer weeks flew by, and although they were extremely warm, some of our ladies still managed to get new shawls made.

Personally, I had a moving experience. A friend of mine saw me at the local deli and asked if I could make a shawl for one of his friends who was dying. He knew her from the gym.

I quickly got one to him with a number of our “comforting prayers.” About six weeks later, the lady passed away, and Andy called me to say the shawl was of great comfort to her in her last few weeks. That Saturday, I looked in the obituaries and noticed that a lady who was my age and who had owned the local gym had died. I then realized that we were classmates in high school. She had taught me to ski. We ate lunch together and shared many good times. I did not know where the shawl I was making was going, but, as they say, “God works in mysterious ways,” and I guess he knew. I am so pleased that she was comforted in her last days.

I would like to share a few of the many thank-you cards that have come to us. Here are a few of the excerpts from the notes:

- ❖ “Thank you for the beautiful shawl. They let me take it to the O.R. with me, and it was on my bed in recovery. It kept me warm when I had the chills and gave me comfort when I was in pain, and it remains with me. Orra Wood.”
- ❖ “Thank you for attending my mom’s wake and for the prayer shawl of comfort. I couldn’t read the prayers without shedding a tear. Joan and Pat Noonan.”
- ❖ “Ladies, I wanted to thank you and Heather from the bottom of my heart for the beautiful prayer shawl. I cannot even begin to explain the comfort you have given to me. What a wonderful gift I have been blessed with. The poems and prayers are where I can read them each day and they remind me I am never alone. God bless all of you. In Christian faith and love, Tammy Rose.” (Tammy is one of the ladies from the National Guard unit whose husband is away.)
- ❖ “Dear Ladies of the Prayer Shawl Ministry, Your loving cards and your prayers surround me like the beautiful shawl I wrap myself in. Thinking of the many caring stitches and the work involved warmed my heart. I love the blue and white colors and the sparkly blue stripe in the middle. Many thanks for the prayers that were brought to me and brought me home at last. Thankfully, Fran Hoffmann.”
- ❖ “Dear Friends, Thank you each for the love, comfort, and support you have given to me through my cancer journey. I feel closer to all because of your beautiful shawls. I cover myself from my neck to my toes. You are amazing. I read the prayers and poems over and over and they give me comfort. Love Gabriel Bittner, Hawley, PA.”

So, my friends, as you can see, we are reaching out and touching many. This is just a small sampling of the wonderful notes that have come to us.

Please remember that we will continue to take yarn, gift bags, tissue paper, ribbons, etc., for our gifts that are sent out from the church. Thank you to all who have brought some of these supplies for us.

The Prayer Shawl Ministry has decided to meet on the first and third Tuesdays of each month from 1:00 – 2:30 p.m. in the parlor. In September, the dates are the 7th and 21st. Anyone who would like to come join us or just come sit in and learn the art of crocheting is welcome. Bring a friend! Hope you will join this worthwhile ministry.

God bless each of you, and consider yourselves hugged,
Wendy Paffenroth

FUNDRAISING UPDATES

A big thank-you is extended to everyone who helped during the Great American Weekend! Everything went smoothly, and the French fries were sold out by mid-afternoon on Sunday. Thanks to the following people: George and Barbara Hankins, Gina and John Gruber, Linda and Garf Clark, Grace Lanuti, Linda Boardman, Bruce Crandall, Dom and Amy Fontana, Brian and Kari Taylor, Carolyn Keller, Barbara Drake, Kay Kent, Lori Turner, Darlene and Cliff Bartley, Wendy and Dave Paffenroth, Ray and Sue Ruckdeschel, Tom McDowell, Bill Hodges, Mal Stewart, Tyler Cox, Ed Englehart, Carol Gabella, Geri Corey, Barbara Thompson, Betty Lobb, and Mary Kingsley. Great job, everyone! Our profit was as follows: French fries—$1,847; rides—$5,870; antiques—$1,015. This money goes into the operating budget of our church.

So far, there are three activities coming up, and the profits will go into the Capital Campaign funds. The activities are: dinner and movie nights on the first Saturday of each month; the fifth Night of Giving at the Galleria at Crystal Run (total profit to us—the more tickets we sell, the more money we bring in!); and a community yard sale, which will be held in October. Also coming up in October will be a rummage sale. The profit from the sale will go into the operating budget. We'll be working on other ideas soon!

Confessing Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, guided and empowered by the Holy Spirit, we shall seek to use our gifts through worship, ministry, and mission, to gather the Church in from the world, to continue to nurture one another, to serve a world still broken, and to exemplify through common values and purposes Christian discipleship to the greater glory of God.
